Description of Worms, and the symptoms by which they are known.

Worms which infest the human body are chiefly of four kinds viz—The Teres or large round worm; the Ascarides or small maw-worm; the Cucurbitina or short flat white worm; and lastly, the Tænia or tape-worm, so called from its resemblance to tape. This is often many yards long and is full of joints. It is most hurtful and most difficult to remove.

Among the symptoms attending worms are—disagreeable breath, especially in the morning; bad and corrupted gums; itching in the nose, and about the seat; convulsions, epileptic fits, and sometimes privation of speech; starting and grinding of the teeth in sleep; irregular appetite, sometimes loathing food and sometimes voracious; purging with slimy and fœtid stools; vomiting; large and hard belly; pains and sickness at the stomach; slow fever with small and irregular pulse; a dry cough; excessive thirst; sometimes pale and unhealthy countenance, and sometimes the face bloated and flushed.

Persons afflicted with any of the above symptoms should have immediate recourse to Hamilton's Worm Destroying Lozenges, which have been constantly attended with success in all complaints similar to those above described.

A dose of this medicine given occasionally during the warm season, will effectually prevent the vomiting and purging of children—a dreadful disorder, which annually destroys thousands of the infant part of our citizens. It is likewise the mildest and most certain remedy known, and has restored to health and strength a great number when in an advanced stage of this fatal complaint. Particular and plain instructions are given for every part of the necessary treatment in such cases.

Children generally take this medicine with eagerness; having a pleasing appearance, and an agreeable taste.

From Moore's Lalla Rookh.

SONG,

By Queen Nourmahel, in the disguise of an Arabian maid, addressed to Selim, or Jeham Guire, the emperor.

Fly to the desert, fly with me, Our Arab tents are rude for thee—But oh! the choice what heart can doubt, Of tents with love, or thrones without?

Our rocks are rough—but smiling there, Th' acacia waves her yellow hair Lonely and sweet, nor lov'd the less For flowing in a wilderness.

Our sands are bare—but down their slope, The silvery footed antelope As gracefully and gaily springs, As o'er the marble court of kings.

Then come—thy Arab maid will be The lov'd and lone acacia tree;
The antelope whose feet shall bless With their light sound thy loneliness.

Oh! there are looks and tones that dart An instant sunshine through the heart, As if the soul that minute caught Some treasure it thro' life had sought;

As if the very lips and eyes, Predestin'd to have all our sighs,
And never be forgot again, Sparkled and spoke before us then!

So came thy every glance and tone, When first on me they breath'd & shone;
New, as if brought from other spheres, Yet welcome, as if lov'd for years.

Then fly with me—if thou hast known No other flame, nor falsely thrown A gem away, that thou hadst sworn Should ever in thy heart be worn.

Come, if the love thou hast for me, Is pure and fresh as mine for thee—Fresh as the fountain under ground, When first 'tis by the lapwing found.

But if for me thou didst forsake Some other maid, and rudely break Her worship'd image from its base, To give to me the ruin'd place;—

Then fare thee well.—I'd rather make My bower upon some icy lake, When thawing suns begin to shine, Than trust to love so false as thine.

From the Albany Daily Advertiser.

Notwithstanding many of our brethren of the quill are apt to repine at their lot, and imagine themselves the most luckless mortals in existence, still we think that for a few years past, we have been about as highly favored as any profession in the community, or at least if our subscribers would be as prompt in their payments as we are in publishing the paper, we should be so.

When Bonaparte was dethroned and banished to Elba, many of our editors trembled, lest they should be compelled to lay aside their goose-quills. But their blood had scarcely become cool, before he was let loose, much to the terror of all good people, save the manufacturers of newspapers. Though he made but a short tarry in France, yet he laid out a good year's work for editors. The commencement of the year following, found the fraternity nibbling their nails and their quills for the want of subjects.—But luckily just about this time, the sun was afflicted with a sore disease, which broke out upon his face, much like the spotted fever.—This was truly a fortunate occurrence. All hands went bravely to work, to ascertain the nature of old Mr. Phœbus's complaint. Priests, Printers, Philosophers and schoolboys were to be seen looking at his goodship through smoked window glass and telescopes, for the whole season. And after many marvellous discoveries and wise observations, each succeeded in convincing the world that neither knew any thing about it.—But with the assistance of a little politics, some house breaking, horse stealing, a few robberies, some murderers, the great drought, and the Princess Charlotte's wedding, the papers were filled, and the season passed off quite comfortably. During the present season, we have done pretty well thus far. The quid-nuncs and wonder-mongers did indeed complain a little early in the spring, but they were soon relieved from their dreadful apprehensions from the appearance of a numerous army of locusts in the south; and in a few days after, by a host of bugs and wire worms in the north. The heavy rains in June dispersed these destroyers; but fortunately the President set out upon his tour exactly at this period.—This completely engrossed the public attention. A grand farce was acted at Baltimore, which was played off "all the way round" to Sacket's Harbour.—In the mean time, the addresses filled up the papers; the mayors and aldermen, and all the guzzlers and gormandizers on his route, ate and drank to a surfeit, while the mouths of those at a distance watered for a taste. After the president had safely entered the woods, we began to think that the fraternity of editors would for a little season be out of labor. But our kind stars have again favoured us. The President's back was no sooner turned, than the Great Snake made his appearance among the Yankees, who appear this season to be remarkably favored with the company of the great folks. At present, nothing is talked of at the East but the snake. Doctors have quit their patients, lawyers their studies, the venders of tape and buckram their shops, the carmen their carts, carpenters their hand saws, and fishermen their cod-lines, all to gaze at their "illustrious visitor." Whether the Boston folks have invited this aquatic gentlemen to a public dinner, or have yet presented him with an address, we have not learned. Thus one wonder passeth away, and another cometh, greatly to the relief of editors, and the infinite satisfaction of wonder mongers. By the bye, would it not be well to have a map of Cape Ann Harbor, with the likeness of the snake taken from real life, appended to the patriotic map proposed by Major Russel, a short time since.

SUN FLOWER OIL.

It appears by experiments formerly made in this state, (Pennsylvania.) that a bushel of sun flower seed, yields a gallon of oil, and that an acre of ground planted with the seed at 3 feet apart will yield between forty and fifty bushels of the seed. The oil is as mild as sweet oil, and is equally agreeable with it in sallads and as a medicine. It may be used with advantage in paints, varnishes, and ointments. From its being in our country, it can always be procured and used in a fresh state. The oil is expressed from the seed in the same manner that cold drawn linseed oil is obtained from flax seed and with as little trouble. Sweet oil sells for six shillings a quart. Should the oil of the sun flower sell for only two thirds of that price, the product of one acre of ground, supposing it to yield only forty bushels, will be 30*l.* a sum far above the product of ground in any other sort of grain. The seed is raised with very little trouble, and grows in land of moderate fertility. It may be gathered and shelled, fit for extraction of the oil, by women and children.

This question has been frequently asked by the fair sex, why no female was ever initiated into the sublime mysteries of Masonry? And indeed it has sometimes furnished grounds of complaint to some worthy helpmates, that their husbands should presume to perform any action, without first submitting it, in all its bearings and consequences, to their consideration, and obtaining their approbation;—And no satisfactory reason has ever been assigned though it has often been attempted, and some fictitious objections have been plausibly, though imprudently suggested, to the infinite prejudice of the female character (such as their utter inability to govern their tongues, &c.) But at a late celebration of St. John's Day, in a neighboring town, the true cause was happily developed in the following toast, which it is presumed will supercede the necessity of all further inquiry.

"The Fair Sex.—Whose smiles alone make life desirable, and who are excluded from our lodges not because they are deemed unworthy, but because their virtues are so steadfast, as not to need artificial support."

[Con Gaz.

HENRY IV. King of France, considered this maxim superior to any other: "the satisfaction derived from revenge is only momentary, brutal pleasure, that leaves an envenomed sting behind; but that gained from clemency, is godlike, serene, and lasts forever.

ALEXANDRIA:
TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 9, 1817.

CHANGES IN THE ANIMAL KINGDOM.

[The subject concluded.]

Thus then, it appears that all things whether in the animal, the vegetable or the mineral kingdoms—Every thing from inert matter up to man (how much farther it is forbidden us to know) are perpetually changing their forms. But, as I have said before, though the forms change, the quantity of matter is invariable; the same substances passing successively through the three several kingdoms, and constituting in their turn, a mineral, a plant, an insect, a reptile, a fish, a bird, a quadruped or a man. In these transformations, organized bodies are principal agents. They change or decompose every substance that either enters into them, or is exposed to the action of their powers. Some they assimilate by the process of nutrition, into their own substance; others they evacuate in different forms, and these evacuations become ingredients in the compositions of other bodies, as those of insects, whose multiplication is prodigious, and affords a very great quantity of organized matter for the nourishment and support of animated beings.—Thus from the vilest and most contemptible species of matter, the richest productions derive their origin. The most beautiful and fragrant flowers, the most exquisite fruits, and the most useful grain, all proceed from the bosom of corruption. The earth is continually bestowing fresh gifts upon us; and her powers would soon be exhausted, if what she perpetually gives were not perpetually restored to her. It is a law of nature that all organized bodies should be decomposed, and gradually transformed into earth. While undergoing this species of dissolution, their more volatile particles pass into the air, and are diffused through the atmosphere. Thus animals, or at least portions of them, are buried in the air, as well as in the earth, or in water. These floating particles soon enter into the composition of new organized beings who are themselves destined to undergo the same revolutions. This circulation of organized matter has continued since the commencement of the world, and will proceed in the same course till its final destruction.

Though the intentions of nature in keeping up existence by a perpetual change of the forms of organized matter, one purpose seems to be obvious. In the animal world every change is a new approach to the perfections of the individuals, at which they remain stationary for the purpose of continuing and multiplying their respective species, whence they gradually decay till their final dissolution. The same may be said of the insect tribes whose transformations occasion so much wonder. All the changes in the vegetable kindom tend to the same point. In the process of growing, they are perpetually changing forms, till they produce fruit, and then they decay. Some plants, like caterpillars, go through all their transformations, death included, in one year. But others, like man and the larger animals, beside the common changes produced by growth and the evolution of different organs, continue for many years in a state of perfection before the periods of their dissolution arrive. But these perennial plants undergo, every year, all the vicissitudes of the animals. They every year increase in magnitude, send forth new leaves and branches, ripen and disseminate their seeds, and during winter remain in a torpid state, or suffer a temporary death.

With respect to man, in particular, it may be enquired, why is he to be confined to so short a period of existence here, whose intellectual attainments seem to be too vast, his ambition too exalted to perish forever? To which the answer is, that 'tis true he undergoes a momentary change—he perishes for a season—but to him who improves his powers, and perseveres in the paths of piety and virtue, there is promised another and more glorious transformation—a resurrection to immortal life and everlasting joy.

Nothing can be more applicable than the awful reflections of Doctor Young, to the above observations.

"Lorenzo! such are the glories of the world!
What is the world itself?—Thy world—a grave.
Where is the dust that has not been alive?
The spade, the plough, disturb our ancestors;
From human mould we reap our daily bread.
The globe around earth's hollow surface shakes.
And is the cieling of her sleeping sons.
O'er devastations we blind revels keep;
Whole buried towns support the dancer's heel.
The moist of human frame the sun exhales; Winds scatter through the mighty void the dry; Earth repossesses part of what she gave
And the freed spirit mounts on wings of fire; Each element partakes our scatter'd spoils;
As nature, wide our ruins spread: man's death Inhabits all things, but the thought of man."

Yesterday his excellency the minister plenipotentiary of France was on board of the French frigate l'Eurydice, and was received with the honors and salute due to his high rank. In the afternoon he went with his suite and all the officers of the frigate to pay a visit to the vice-president, on Staten Island.

It is rumored that the frigate l'Eurydice will alter her course, and not sail for France, having received orders from the French government.

Rhode Island Election.—The election for representatives to the general assembly of Rhode Island took place on Tuesday of last week. The Newport paper of Saturday states that 2 federalists were chosen in Exeter in the room of democrats, and that democratic representatives were chosen in Little Compton, Warren and Bristol; and adds, "The Federalists will still have a majority of ten in the house of Representatives."

Congressional Elections.—John Scott, Esq. is elected a delegate to congress from Missouri Territory, by a majority of seven hundred votes over his opponent, Rufus Easton.

Mr. Hendricks is elected to congress from the state of Indiana.

Tennessee Elections.—The compensation law has produced an entire change in the congressional representation of this state, except that William G. Blount is re-elected by a very small majority over general Cocke. John Rhea is elected over Sevier in the 1st district; Thomas Claiborne over Cannon and Weakly in the 5th; Geo. W. L. Marr succeeds Mr. Reynolds in the 6th; Dr. Samuel Hogg succeeds Mr. Henderson in the 4th; and Francis Jones succeeds J. Thomas in the 3d. For governor, McMinn is re-elected over Foster, who obtained majorities in Davidson and some other counties in West Tennessee.

Rainbow at Night.—A correspondent of the Philadelphia American Daily Advertiser states, that on Saturday evening last he "saw an object as beautiful as rare—a rainbow made by the reflection of the moon. About 9 o'clock, P. M. a lowering and black cloud obscured the western sky; and at same time the moon, nearly full orbed, illumined the eastern horizon, and produced a distinct rainbow, arching at least one quarter of the Heavens."

Ice in August.—A paper printed at Washington, Pennsylvania, says, "We broke ice this morning (25th of August) as thick as common soal leather, which had frozen during the last night."

LONDON, JULY 2.

CHIMNEY-SWEEPERS.—The report of the committee of the house of Commons on the petition against the employments of boys in sweeping chimnies, has been printed. It recommends the prevention of the further use of climbing boys, for that purpose; and has annexed to it the minutes of the evidence taken before the committe, from which the following is an interesting extract:

"William Tooke, esq. again called in and further examined.

The witness delivered in the following paper.

"About, or in the month of August, 1814, a chimney-sweeper, of Burlington, (or Bridlington), in Yorkshire, bought a little boy for the sum of eight guineas of a beggar woman; this child, who appeared to be about four years of age, was employed to sweep a chimney in that town; he was taken up by an elder boy, who left him there, when, as might reasonably be expected, he fell down; by which accident he bruised his legs terribly against the grate; his air and manner appeared so different from those of the children who are usually employed for that purpose, that the Misses Strickland, of Boynton, hearing of the child, went to see him: they were so much interested with him, and so persuaded that he had been stolen, that they took him home with them (the chimney-sweeper being glad to part with him). Soon after he got to Boynton, the seat of Sir George Strickland, a plate with some-thing to eat was brought him; on a silver fork he was quite delighted, said, 'papa had such forks as' He also said, the carpet in the room was like papa's. The horse showed him a silver watch, he what sort it was? papa's was watch; he then pressed the hand said, 'papa's watch rings, why your's?' Sir George Strickland ing told this circumstance, shown a gold repeater; the little boy the spring, and when it struck, he ed about the room, saying 'papa's rings so.' At night when he was to bed, he said he could not go to til he had said his prayers; he peated the Lord's prayer almost ly.—The account he gives of him that he was gathering flowers in his ma's garden, and that the woman sold him, came in and asked if he riding? He said 'yes;' and him he should ride with her. him on a horse, after which they a vessel, and the sails were up, 'way we went.' He had no recollection of his name, or where he lived, & young to think his father had any name than that of papa. He whenever he heard a servant in the ly at Boynton called George, and as if he expected to see someb knew; on inquiry, he said he had cle George, whom he loved dearly, says his mamma is dead; and that his father may be abroad. From things he says, he seems to have chiefly with an uncle and aunt, w invariably says were called Mr. and Flembrough. From various circumces, it is thought impossible he the child of the woman who sold his manners being very civilized, those of a child well educated; lect is good, and that of the S England. This little boy, when discovered, was conjectured to be four years old, and is described as beautiful black eyes and eye-lash high nose, and a delicate soft skin.

Dreadful accident from Fire.

On Tuesday an inquisition was on the bodies of Mr. James Black, 32, Mrs. Black, his wife, aged 2 Miss Maria Black, their daughter, 3 years. Witness attempted to go her bed room to get her clothes, but heat was so great, that she fainted John Hill deposed, that about 12 o'c on Sunday night, he found Mr. Bl house on fire; the lower part being fire, no person could enter it. maid servant threw herself out of the second floor windows, fell on leads over the shop window, and thence into the street, by which broke both of her legs and arms, and ceived several other severe injur Witness ran up stairs, when he met sailor on the second floor, carrying Ranton, whom he found there in a of suffocation, down in his arms; she now out of danger.—Witness went try to save part of the property, and a corner of the room he discovered and Mrs. Black, and both their child lying stretched; the infant was in Black's arm, sucking at the breast; handed it to a person who carried the Anchor and Eight Bells, and is perfectly well. The Jury were of opinion, that had Mr. and Mrs. Black and children not turned into the bed room they might have been saved.—Verdict. Accidental death.

Foreign inteligence continued from London papers received by the Julius Cæsar. From the extracts which we present, those who take so much more delight in reading any scrap that relates to a foreign land, particularly England that they derive from perusing a column that merely concerns their own country, wi we hope, find something to gratify their taste. We will not, by making a summary, anticipate their enjoyment.

Extracts from London papers.

A letter from Vienna (says one of our London papers of the 2d of July) mentions that the mountain called the Hausruck, in Upper Austria, has disappeared, and its place is supplied by a lake. This mountain was very high, and the country around took its name from it. Since the preceding month several phenomena had warned the inhabitants that something awful would happen, and there were frequent subterraneous noises heard. About a dozen cottages, which were built in various parts of the hill, have, of course, disappeared; but it is not known whether any person perished in them.

A letter from an officer at St. Helena, dated 15th of May, to his friend in England, says, "Bonaparte begins to walk out a little; we, therefore, suppose he is getting the better of his sulky fit. He does not look so well as he did, which, it may be imagined, is owing to his keeping so much within doors. The 53d regiment is healthy, but the 66th (2d bat.) has had extensive sickness."

The Spanish ambassador having officially complained to lord Castlereagh of the departure for South-America of several British officers to join the Insurgents, his lordship, in reply, assured the Spanish government that such conduct had been pursued without the knowledge or approbation of the British government; and holds that the Spanish Royalists may act as they may think proper with regard to these emigrants when they fall into their power.

The Paris papers of the 18th arrived last night, and those of the 19th this morning.

These papers contain the report of the committee appointed by the diet of Frankfort, to devise the most effectual means for protecting the commerce of Germany from the piracies of the Algerine and Tunisian corsairs. Our readers will observe in it the extreme anxiety with which the attention of the diet is directed to the interference of England, which alone is conceived effectual towards correcting the evil, and to obtain this desirable object, all the great powers of Europe are to be entreated to exert their influence with the court of Great Britain. It is proposed that a confederacy should be formed for the purpose of pursuing, as pirates, any of the Barbary cruisers, if found in the Atlantic, and, if taken, the ships are to be destroyed, and the crews subjected to rigorous bodily punishment. It is a question for serious consideration how far this country would be justifiable in treating with so much severity those powers, which evince no intention of interrupting our commerce, or violating the treaties that are now in existence. We have, indeed, already recognized the principle of excluding the Barbary cruisers from the seas that immediately wash their own shores; but there seems to be no satisfactory reason for throwing on England the exclusive or principal burden of chasing them over the ocean and confining them within the limits of the Mediterranean, solely for the protection of German, Danish, or other commerce. Russia, which affects to be the guardian of the northern states, possesses a marine fully adequate to support her claim to the title of their protectress, at least from the Barbary corsairs; and France enjoys a maritime force which could doubtless protect the freedom of the Atlantic from such intruders. Why then should application be made almost exclusively to Great Britain to undertake a task of a character sufficiently odious from its principle of despotism, and which must deprive her of whatever advantages she might expect to derive from any trade on the coast of Barbary? While these countries act towards us with good faith, we should seem to have no more right to consider them within the Mediterranean than they have to exclude us from it, except, indeed, such a right as the possession of superior force may be supposed to confer.

We have extracted from the German papers an article from the Ghent Journal, which furnishes a fresh proof of the ransomless and inveterate hostility against British commerce cherished on the continent.

The extracts from the address of the chairman, on the opening of the quarter sessions at Leeds and Stafford, which we gave yesterday, must rescue those districts from the misrepresentations under which they have so long labored, as the favorite seats of treason and disaffection. The circuits have commenced in Ireland, and we have the pleasure to find in the address of the several judges to the grand juries that that country is equally loyal and tranquil.

PARIS, July 15.

The Baroness de Staël expired yesterday a victim to the painful malady which has long occasioned the liveliest alarm to her numerous friends. She was 52 years of age. Madame de Staël was daughter of Neckar and of Susan Curchod, the object of the early, perhaps the only passion, of Gibbon, the historian of the Roman empire. The genius of this ingenious and celebrated woman was rather splendid than useful. Her writings, which are voluminous, may be considered as indicating more knowledge than they impart: her reasonings are ingenious and sometimes profound; her thoughts frequently original: her imagination, active, brilliant and profuse, now and then perplexes the subject, which it is the province of imagination to illustrate. Her power of luminous & eloquent expression must give the works of Madame de Staël a passport to every cultivated circle: but they belong much more to the class of luxuries than of sound and healthful diet for the mind. Her moral system must be searched for among the folds of rich and voluptuous sensibility, with which she has invested it; and we are sure that it will always bear the light. Few people, we are persuaded, have risen from her compositions with their taste purified; or their principles strengthened. The debt which the present generation owes to the alluring author of "Delphine" & "Corinne," bears some resemblance in character, though not in amount, to that which was imposed upon the age preceding, by the sentiment and sophistry of Rousseau. Where she counsels the reader to virtue, he does not feel more virtuously disposed; as, where she professes to treat of literature, she adds little to the common stock of learning. Madame de Staël was well known in England, where she mingled in the best and highest classes of society, and where her tone of conversation, tho' somewhat restless and authoritative, was admired for its elegance, vivacity and power. July 18.

The Diligence, between Bordeaux and Toulouse was stopped on the night of the 9th instant, and robbed of a sum of 10,000 francs, besides the money and property of the passengers. The robbers had the precaution to place upon the road and in the neighboring fields, a number of men of straw, to inspire terror by a shew of a great force.

Fifty Dollars Reward.

RAN AWAY from the subscriber, on the third day of July last, Negro WILL, commonly calls himself WILLIAM LEACH, but since has passed himself by the name of JOSEPH GALES, and was committed to the jail of Fairfax county on the 24th of last month—(August)—and broke jail. Said negro is about 5 feet 5 inches high black complexion, thick nose, high forehead, has a blemish in his right eye, well made, uses his left hand generally instead of his right—had on when he broke jail, a white jean round jacket, while trowsers and sailors' hat; when spoken to is very pert and forward in conversation. The above reward will be paid if delivered to S. Ratcliffe, at Fairfax court house, or thing to eat was brought him; on see a silver fork he was quite delighted, a said, 'papa had such forks as thos He also said, the carpet in the drawi room was like papa's. The housekee showed him a silver watch, he ask what sort it was? papa's was a g watch; he then pressed the handle, a said, 'papa's watch rings, why does y your's?' Sir George Strickland, on l ing told this circumstance, showed h a gold repeater: the little boy pres the spring, and when it struck, he jum ed about the room, saying 'papa's wat rings so' At night when he was go to bed, he said he could not go to bed u til he had said his prayers; he then p peated the Lord's prayer almost perfec ly.—The account he gives of himself that he was gathering flowers in his ma ma's garden, and that the woman w sold him, came in and asked if he lik riding? He said 'yes;' and she to him he should ride with her. She p him on a horse, after which they got in a vessel, and the sails were up, 'and way we went.' He had no recollect of his name, or where he lived, & was t young to think his father had any oth name than that of papa. He start whenever he heard a servant in the fam ly at Boynton called George, and looke as if he expected to see somebody h knew; on inquiry, he said he had an u cle George, whom he loved dearly.—H says his mamma is dead; and it is th his father may be abroad. From man things he says, he seems to have live chiefly with an uncle and aunt, whom h invariably says were called Mr. and Mr Flembrough. From various circumsta ces, it is thought impossible he should b the child of the woman who sold him his manners being very civilized, quite those of a child well educated; his da lect is good, and that of the South o England. This little boy, when fir discovered, was conjectured to be about four years old, and is described as having beautiful black eyes and eye-lashes, high nose, and a delicate soft skin."

Dreadful accident from Fire.

On Tuesday an inquisition was held on the bodies of Mr. James Black, aged 38, Mrs. Black, his wife, aged 25, and Miss Maria Black, their daughter, aged 3 years. Miss Elizabeth Rouse said, he brother keeps a butcher's shop, next doo to Mr. Black, who kept an oil shop in Bermondsey-street. Witness supped with Mr. and Mrs. Black on Sunday night, and did not leave them till half past ten. She was partly undressed when she heard a knocking; she ran down to Mr. Butcher, who cried out to her to make haste, the next house was on fire. Witness heard Mrs. Black in the next house cry out "fire!—Oh my children!" Witness attempted to go into her bed room to get her clothes, but the heat was so great, that she fainted away.
John Hill deposed, that about 12 o'clock on Sunday night, he found Mr. Black's house on fire; the lower part being on fire, no person could enter it. The maid servant threw herself out of one of the second floor windows, fell on the leads over the shop window, and from thence into the street, by which she broke both of her legs and arms, and received several other severe injuries.
Witness ran up stairs, when he met a sailor on the second floor, carrying Miss Ranton, whom he found there in a state of suffocation, down in his arms; she is now out of danger.—Witness went in to try to save part of the property, and in a corner of the room he discovered Mr. and Mrs. Black, and both their children, lying stretched; the infant was in Mrs.
Black's arm, sucking at the breast; he handed it to a person who carried it to the Anchor and Eight Bells, and is now perfectly well. Witness, at the risk of his life, carried Mrs. Black in his arms to the watch house; she breathed for four or five times and expired; she had no marks of fire, but as he supposes, was suffocated from the smoke and water her mouth was full of dust. Witness, being overcome by heat and suffocation fainted; he was bled, which recovered him. The bodies of Mr. Black and his daughter, were dead when found—Thomas Hockins said, Miss Ranton, sister of Mrs. Black, about 18 years of age, was nearly suffocated, and still continues very ill. She was still ignorant of the death of her relatives, and she supposed the fire happened thro' the carelessness of the servant, who remained up after the family had retired.

Being alarmed at the cry of fire, and finding that their escape by the street door was cut off, Mr. Black broke a hole through the partition into Mr.
House's house, through which Mr. and Mrs. Black and she got out, but missing the children, they returned for them, and got in again to Mr. Rouse's; when, being overcome by the smoke and heat, she fainted away, and cannot tell how she was saved, or what become of the rest.—The surgeon's opinion was, that they died from suffocation. The Jury were of opinion, that had Mr. and Mrs.
Black and children not turned into the bed room they might have been saved.— Verdict. Accidental death.

From the N. York Evening Post. Sept. 4.

Foreign intelligence continued from London papers received by the Julius Cæsar. From the extracts which we present, those who take so much more delight in reading any scrap that relates to a foreign land, particularly England that they derive from perusing a column that merely concerns their own country, will we hope, find something to gratify their taste. We will not, by making a summary, anticipate their enjoyment.

Extracts from London papers.

A letter from Vienna (says one of our London papers of the 2d of July) mentions that the mountain called the Haus-ruck, in Upper Austria, has disappeared, and its place is supplied by a lake. This mountain was very high, and the country around took its name from it. Since the preceding month several phenomena had warned the inhabitants that something awful would happen, and there were frequent subterraneous noises heard. About a dozen cottages, which were built in various parts of the hill, have, of course, disappeared; but it is not known whether any person perished in them.

A letter from an officer at St. Helena, dated 15th of May, to his friend in England, says, "Bonaparte begins to walk out a little; we, therefore, suppose he is getting the better of his sulky fit. He does not look so well as he did, which, as it may be imagined, is owing to his keeping so much within doors. The 53d regiment is healthy, but the 66th (2d bat.) has had extensive sickness."

London, July 21.

The Spanish ambassador having officially complained to lord Castlereagh of the departure for South-America of several British officers to join the Insurgents, his lordship, in reply, assured the Spanish government that such conduct had been pursued without the knowledge or approbation of the British government; and adds that the Spanish Royalists may act as they may think proper with regard to these emigrants when they fall into their power.

The Paris papers of the 18th arrived last night, and those of the 19th this morning.

These papers contain the report of the committee appointed by the diet of Frankfort, to devise the most effectual means for protecting the commerce of Germany from the piracies of the Algerine and Tunisian corsairs. Our readers will observe in it the extreme anxiety with which the attention of the diet is directed to the interference of England, which alone is conceived effectual towards correcting the evil, and to obtain this desirable object, all the great powers of Europe are to be entreated to exert their influence with the court of Great Britain. It is proposed that a confederacy should be formed for the purpose of pursuing, as pirates, any of the Barbary cruisers, if found in the Atlantic, and, if taken, the ships are to be destroyed, and the crews subjected to rigorous bodily punishment.
It is a question for serious consideration how far this country would be justifiable in treating with so much severity those powers, which evince no intention of interrupting our commerce, or violating the treaties that are now in existence. We have, indeed, already recognized the principle of excluding the Barbary cruisers from the seas that immediately wash our own shores; but there seems to be no satisfactory reason for throwing on England the exclusive or principal burden of chasing them over the ocean and confining them within the limits of the Mediterranean, solely for the protection of German, Danish, or other commerce.
Russia, which affects to be the guardian of the northern states, possesses a marine fully adequate to support her claim to the title of their protectress, at least from the Barbary corsairs; and France enjoys a maritime force which could doubtless protect the freedom of the Atlantic from such intruders. Why then should application be made almost exclusively to Great Britain to undertake a task of a character sufficiently odious from its principle of despotism, and which must deprive her of whatever advantages she might expect to derive from any trade on the coast of Barbary? While these corsairs act towards us with good faith, we should seem to have no more right to confine them within the Mediterranean than they have to exclude us from it, except, indeed, such a right as the possession of superior force may be supposed to confer on us.

We have extracted from the German papers an article from the Ghent Journal, which furnishes a fresh proof of the rancorous and inveterate hostility against British commerce cherished on the continent.

The extracts from the address of the chairman, on the opening of the quarter sessions at Leeds and Stafford, which we gave yesterday, must rescue those districts from the misrepresentations under which they have so long labored, as the favorite seats of treason and disaffection.
Treasonable circuits have commenced in Ireland, and we have the pleasure to find in the address of the several judges to the grand juries that that country is equally loyal and tranquil.

PARIS, July 15.

The Baroness de Stael expired yesterday a victim to the painful malady which for so long occasioned the liveliest alarm to her numerous friends. She was 55 years of age. Madame de Stael was daughter of Neckar and of Susan Curchod the object of the early, perhaps the first passion, of Gibbon, the historian of the Roman empire. The genius of this ingenious and celebrated woman was rather splendid than useful. Her writings, which are voluminous, may be considered as indicating more knowledge than they impart: her reasonings are ingenious and sometimes profound; her thoughts frequently original: her imagination, active, brilliant and profuse, now and then perplexes the subject, which it is the province of imagination to illustrate. Her power of luminous & eloquent expression must give the works of Madame de Stael a passport to every cultivated circle: but they belong much more to the class of luxuries than of sound and healthful diet for the mind. Her moral system must be searched for among the folds of rich and voluptuous sensibility, with which she has invested it; and we are sure that it will always bear the light. Few people, we are persuaded, have risen from her compositions with their taste purified; or their principles strengthened. The debt which the present generation owes to the alluring author of "Delphine" & "Corinne," bears some resemblance in character, though not in amount, to that which was imposed upon the age preceding, by the sentiment and sophistry of Rousseau. Where she counsels the reader to virtue, he does not feel more virtuously disposed; as, where she professes to treat of literature, she adds little to the common stock of learning. Madame de Stael was well known in England, where she mingled in the best and highest classes of society, and where her tone of conversation, tho' somewhat restless and authoritative, was admired for its elegance, vivacity and power. July 18.

The Diligence, between Bordeaux and Toulouse was stopped on the night of the 9th instant, and robbed of a sum of 10,000 francs, besides the money and property of the passengers. The robbers had the precaution to place upon the road and in the neighboring fields, a number of men of straw, to inspire terror by a shew of a great force.

Fauquier Land for Sale.

THE subscriber offers for sale his farm, called "CULLINS," situated in the county of Fauquier, on Kettle Run, and adjoining the lands of Messrs. Samuel Weaver, Jacob Weaver, and others, 7 miles from Fauquier Court House, 33 from Alexandria, and 3 from the Buckland Mills, containing about 400 acres; a considerable portion of which is now in very heavy timber, the balance cleared and in cultivation, including about 80 acres of the first quality bottom land, which, with a small portion of labor, might be made to produce a large quantity of hay. This land lies well, and is in a good neighborhood, and finely watered, Kettle Run passing thro' the farm. To a person disposed to purchase land for the purpose of cultivating and improving it himself, the above offers great advantages, as the plaster Paris & clover acts on no land more efficaciously than on this.

Also, one other farm, lying immediately adjoining, containing the like number of 400 acres; about one half of which has been cleared, the balance well set in timber.

The above farms will be sold together or separately, as may suit purchasers.—For terms, which will be liberal, apply to the subscriber, residing near the premises.

For the prevention and cure of BILIOUS AND MALIGNANT FEVERS is recommended

HAHN's ANTI-BILIOUS PILLS

THIS Medicine has been attended with a degree of success highly grateful to the inventor's feelings in several parts of the West Indies and in the Southern and Middle States, particularly in New-York Philadelphia Baltimore Petersburg Richmond Norfolk Edenton Wilmington Charleston and Savannah. The testimony of a number of persons in each of the above places can be adduced, who have reason to believe that a timely use of this salutary remedy has under Providence preserved their lives when in the most alarming circumstances.

Facts of this conclusive nature speak more in favour of a medicine than columns of pompous eulogy founded on mere assertion.

It is not indeed presumptuously proposed as an infallible cure, but the inventor has every possible reason that can result from extensive experience for believing that a dose of these Pills taken once in every two weeks during the prevalence of our bilious fevers, will prove an infallible preventative; and further, that in the earlier stages of those diseases their use will very generally succeed in restoring health, and frequently in cases esteemed desperate and beyond the power of common remedies.

The operation of these pills is perfectly mild, so as to be used with safety by persons in every situation and of every age.

They are excellently adapted to carry off superfluous bile and prevent its morbid secretions—to restore and amend the appetite—to produce a free perspiration and thereby prevent colds which are often of fatal consequences. A dose never fails to remove a cold if taken on its first appearance: they are celebrated for removing habitual costiveness—sickness at the stomach and severe head-ache—and ought to be taken by all persons on a change of climate.

They have been found remarkably efficacious in preventing and curing disorders attendant on long voyages, and should be procured and carefully preserved for use by every seaman.

Lee's Infallible Ague and Fever Drops

For the cure of agues, remittent and intermittent fevers.

Hamilton's Worm-destroying Lozenges,

Which have cured an immense number of persons of both sexes of every age and in every situation of various dangerous complaints arising from worms and from obstructions or foulness in their stomach and bowels.

This medicine bears no analogy whatever to others of similar titles so commonly complained of as operating with violence; on the contrary a particular excellence of this remedy is its being suited to every age and constitution. It contains nothing but what is perfectly innocent & is so mild in its operation that it cannot injure the most delicate pregnant lady or the tenderest infant of a week old should no worms exist in the body; but will without pain or griping cleanse the stomach and bowels of whatever is foul or offensive, and thereby prevent the production of worms and many fatal disorders. The lozenges are particularly efficacious in carrying off all gross humours and eruptions, feverish and bilious complaints, and are the safest and mildest purgative that can be used on any occasion

Description of Worms, and the symptoms by which they are known.

Worms which infest the human body are chiefly of four kinds viz.—The T[illegible]res or large round worm; the Ascar[illegible]des or small maw-worm; the Cucur[illegible]ting or short flat white worm; and lastly, the Tænia or tape-worm, so called from its resemblance to tape. It is often many yards long and is full joints. It is most hurtful and most difficult to remove.

Among the symptoms attending worms are—disagreeable breath, especially in the morning; bad and corrupted gums; itching in the nose, and about the [illegible] convulsions, epileptic fits, and sometimes privation of speech; starting and grinding of the teeth in sleep; irregular appetite, sometimes loathing food and sometimes voracious; purging with slimy fætid stools; vomiting; large and hard belly; pains and sickness at the stomach; slow feyer with small and irregular pulse; a dry cough; excessive thirst; sometimes pale and unhealthy countenance, and sometimes the face bloated and flushed.

Persons afflicted with any of the above symptoms should have immediate recourse to Hamilton's Worm Destroying Lozenges, which have been constantly attended with success in all complaints similar to those above described.

A dose of this medicine given occasionally during the warm season, will effectually prevent the vomiting and purging of children—a dreadful disorder which annually destroys thousands of the infant part of our citizens. It is likewise the mildest and most certain remedy known, and has restored to health and strength a great number when in an advanced stage of this fatal complaint. Particular and plain instructions are given for every part of the necessary treatment in such cases.

Children generally take this medicine with eagerness; having a pleasing appearance, and an agreeable taste.

The Genuine Persian Lotion,
